Recently, the federal government and state Superintendent of Public Instruction changed the reporting categories for student ethnic and race data. As a result, we need to ask you to identify your child using these new reporting categories. For example:

- You now must identify your child as either Hispanic/Latino or not Hispanic and as one or more racial groups.
- If your family is Asian, you will now be able to list your child as Chinese, Japanese, or belonging to one or more of the other Asian groups.
- If your family is Native American, you will be able to list your child’s tribal affiliation.
- If one parent identifies with one race and the other parent with another, you will be able to check both races for your child.

Starting September 2010, all public schools will start reporting new categories per Federal and State guidelines.
